Fear Two Firemen Perish in Flames

8 OTHERS HURT IN BLAZE AT PORTSMOUTH

$00,000 Fire Rages Through Business Block in Downtown District.

CAVE-IN TRAPS VICTIMS

Sub-Freezing Temperature Hampers Efforts To Check Conflagration.

By The Associated Press

PORTSMOUTH, O., March 8—Two firemen were believed to have met death, eight other men were injured, one seriously, and the Distelle store in the downtown section was destroyed $200,000 in a fire which for a time threatened to spread to other large structures, here today.

The blaze was brought under control after a fight of several hours and firemen were digging in the mass of debris in an effort to locate the two missing men. Fire department officials felt certain they were killed when they were trapped by the falling roof while working on the mezzanine floor of the Distelle Furniture company, the largest retail store of the kind in Portsmouth.

The missing:

Virgil Ross, 22, member of the New Boston fire department.

Pete Kehoe, 45, Portsmouth fireman.

Ivor Schuster of the Sciotoville fire department was injured when a pumper skidded on the icy road and crashed into a tree.

Cold Hampers Work

Hampered by sub-freezing temperatures, the firemen experienced considerable difficulty in controlling the flames, which destroyed the Distelle store, the Weber Shoe store and the Brown Derby lunch room.

The building is located at Seventh and Chillicothe streets in the heart of the city.

The blaze is believed to have started in the elevator shaft in the furniture store.

Guests were ordered to leave the Lee hotel located immediately to the north of the burned building when the fire threatened to spread to it.

Only a vacant lot separated the Portsmouth telephone exchange from the blaze, but operators kept in the building and the fire fighters kept a constant stream of water on the structure.

Injured fire fighters, who were confined to the hospital by an assortment of injuries ranging from smoke inhalation to compound fractures were:

List of Injured

Assistant Fire Chief R. L. Shumate, Jackson Cropper, Clarence Engelbrecht, Harry Kah, Clyde Joseph and Charles Partlow. Kenneth Mazo, a taxi cab driver, who was assisting firemen, was treated at the hospital for a foot injury, and was able to go to his home.

A fire wall was said to have been the only thing that kept the blaze from spreading to the Playtonight and Wednesday, with snow flurries. The highest temperature in Marion yesterday was 20. A year ago yesterday the high temperature was 40 and the minimum was 30.

Deaths reported yesterday were of a boy killed by a skidding truck on icy streets at Cleveland; an aged man found frozen at Canton; and Harry J. Conley, 49, who dropped dead while shoveling snow in front of his home at Youngstown.

Police investigated the possibility that the Canton victim, Labanna T.

Tributes Voiced for Holmes on 91st Birthday

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 8 — Oliver Wendell Holmes, distinguished and beloved jurist, celebrated his ninety-first birthday today.

The weight of years found him unbroken. Though he was forced recently to resign from the supreme court, the rest has restored him to a mental and physical vigor greater than he had shown in some time.

Birthdays never have been anything to him and his close friends did not expect him to depart from his routine today. A banquet in his honor tonight will attract the most distinguished men of the legal profession to hear and join in his praises.

For years Justice Holmes has not left his quiet home at nights and the day will be no exception. He will listen, perhaps, to the speeches about himself over the radio.

Accompanied by three deaths, wide-spread suffering and property damage, belated winter temperatures continued in Ohio today. The United States weather bureau said no immediate relief was in sight.

The icy blasts that sent Marion's weather bureau thermometer to seven degrees above zero last night, a new low for the winter, have cost the lives of 28 persons in the east, according to The Associated Press.

BURGLAR BELIEVES IN PREPAREDNESS

By The Associated Press

JOLIET, Ill., March 8 — The wind was howling. It was bitter cold, with the temperature hovering around the zero mark.

A lone burglar managed, after some hard work, to get into an electrical supply shop. Then he walked out—with an electric fan.

Police said they suspected an Eskimo.

Cool-Headed

(Will Rogers Special)

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., March 8—Out of 120 million people, if Lindbergh had had as much advice on how to fly the ocean as he has on this case, he would have cracked up in St. Louis. I think the boy has used splendid judgment in this, the same as he has in everything he has done since we first heard of him.

Remember it was his sober judgment that first suggested "get the baby back at any cost," and then start worrying what the punishment would be, if they caught 'em.

And remember there is other kidnaped ones out that are just as dear to their folks as this baby of his. So get all the folks in that's kidnaped, then make some new laws and start over again. Yours,

Will Rogers

FORD FACTORY UNDER GUARD AFTER RIOTING

Four Killed, Score Injured in Clash with Agitators.

COMMUNISTS ARE BLAMED

State and City Police in Detroit Area Prepared Against Second March.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, Mich., March 8—The Detroit area today counted the cost of its first major unemployment riot since changing conditions threw thousands of residents out of work.

In the morgue, in jail and in hospitals were victims of the bitter battle that developed late yesterday when unemployment demonstrators marched on the plant of the Ford Motor company in Dearborn.

Four men, marchers or bystanders, were shot to death, and several score of persons—including Harry H. Bennett, chief of the Ford service department (private police) and eight other officers—were injured before the demonstrators were repulsed at the gates of the factory.

A dozen men from the ranks of the 3,000 or more marchers were in jail, some facing possible murder charges.

Plant Closely Watched

Augmented forces of the law today kept unrelaxing watch on the always closely guarded Ford plant. State police, Detroit officers and Dearborn policemen blocked every approach to the plant against the possibility of a second march.

Authorities professed to have no definite reason to believe another march would be made. The demonstrators fled, leaving one dead and three dying behind. Three of the dead were identified as Joe York, Joe Debruske and Coleman J. Lenz.

Yesterday's demonstration had been announced weeks in advance, some of the announcements saying William Z. Foster, Communist

CHINESE PREPARE TO LAUNCH NEW ATTACK

Observers Predict Major Offense as Both Armies Strengthen Positions.

By The Associated Press

SHANGHAI, March 8 — A new offensive of major character was reported developing today along a newly established battle line west and northwest of Shanghai.

Chinese sources said General Chiang Kai-Shek, former Chinese president, was leaving Nanking for Kunshan, about 15 miles behind Chinese front lines, and this report gave rise to speculation among Chinese that General Chiang planned to participate in a new campaign against the Japanese.

Two thousand Japanese soldiers, who arrived at Woosung yesterday, were taken up to the front lines on the west. They followed larger detachments which entered the lines yesterday. The Japanese also took forward large amounts of ammunition, field guns and supplies.

Independent reports indicated considerable fighting was going on at various points from Nanziang northward, and that both armies were strengthening their positions with increased forces.

SHIP TOSSES ABOUT AT MERCY OF GALE

Crew Unable To Leave Rudderless Craft Until Seas Moderate.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Mass., March 8—Thirty-four men who dared not stop the engines of their rudderless ship looked for moderating seas off Nantucket lightship today to enable them to accept the aid of nearby vessels.

They were the crew of the collier H. F. Debardeleben, in ballast out of Boston for Norfolk.

Seas swept the decks of the high riding ship as she bucked a northwest gale at a seven-knot speed. Her men were unable to stay at their posts and her skipper Captain B. T. Knight, sought immediate assistance.

Attempts were made to abandon ship but to launch the Bardeleben's boats necessitated the stopping of her engines and without power she would lose steerageway and roll over.

The White Star liner Adriatic stood by and three smaller coast guard boats hovered in the vicinity. Attempts to get a line aboard the collier failed and preparations were underway to pick the Bardeleben's crew from the water should she be carried under.

The Bardeleben's home port is New Orleans and she is listed at 429 displacement tons. She left Boston Saturday and had not been out long when thick weather developed.

CAPTAINS FOR JOB DRIVE TO BE NAMED

Representatives of Groups Will Meet Tonight at Legion Dugout.

A skeleton of the organization which will conduct the citywide employment and anti-hoarding campaign of the Marion "At Work" Civic committee beginning March 15 will be formed tonight when representatives of the participating organizations meet at the American Legion dugout.

Assignment of precinct captains from the membership of the Legion is one of the most important tasks scheduled for tonight. The assignments will be announced by Clyde C. Caldwell, chairman of the Legion unemployment committee. The Legion has volunteered to place a captain in each precinct during the drive.

C. F. Bronson, chairman of the organization committee for the drive, will explain the purpose of the drive and outline plans to the precinct captains and to representatives of the Parent-Teacher council, the Federation of Women's clubs, the Central Labor union, the chamber of commerce civic committee and representatives of the Legion and the Legion auxiliary.

These organizations have volunteered to furnish workers in each precinct to work with the precinct captains in combing the city for jobs.

Work on other details of the drive is progressing rapidly. Plans were being made today to have printed several thousand bulletins containing work suggestions. These will be distributed throughout the city just before more than 300 persons conduct an intensive 10-day drive for jobs. This drive will be followed up during a 90-day period, with a clearing house functioning in the chamber of commerce to place unemployed men at work on "discovered" jobs.

TWO PILOTS DEAD IN NIGHT FLYING DRILL

Three Others Hurt as Plane Crashes into Windmill at St. Louis.

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Mo., March 8—Two Century airplanes pilots were killed and three other pilots injured, when the plane in which they were practicing night landings crashed near the Curtiss-Steinberg airfield in East St. Louis early today.

The aviators were employed by the Century airlines, following the dismissal of other pilots by the company when a salary disagreement arose. The plane struck an old windmill about 500 yards from the edge of the field and crashed to the ground.

The dead are L. H. Atkinson, 35, and James S. Kirk, 35, both of Chicago. The injured: Ira Smalling, 33, Chicago, fractured leg; Sidney Cleveland, 34, Goldfield, Ia., cuts and bruises and shock; Theodore Graff, 29, Chicago, cuts and bruises.

The Century airlines recently slashed the pay of its pilots and when they refused to take the cut, dismissed them, hiring other fliers.

Smalling, a former navy flier and Graff, were at the controls of the ship when it struck the windmill.

SPEED PROSECUTION OF NILES KIDNAPERS

Trumbull County Plans Quick Justice for Alleged Abductors of Boy.

By The Associated Press

WARREN, O., March 8—The speediest criminal prosecution in the history of Trumbull county is planned for the kidnapers of 12-year-old James DeJute Jr., who was rescued unharmed Saturday.

Two men captured when the boy was found in an abandoned gambling house near Youngstown, were indicted yesterday on charges of kidnaping with attempt to extort.

A similar indictment was returned for a third man, alleged leader in the plot, who was still hunted by the authorities. He was named as "John Coe."

Prosecutor B. H. Birrell said the two arrested would be arraigned today and if possible would be brought to trial Thursday. The maximum penalty is life imprisonment.

The two men captured were Dowell Hargraves, 31, and John DeMarco, 30, both of Youngstown. Police said DeMarco claimed he did not participate in the kidnaping, and that he went to the house only to purchase liquor.

ATTORNEY OFFERS KIDNAPERS $50,000

Friend of Lindberghs Makes High Bid for Return of Baby.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 8—William Lafferty, attorney, who was colleague in the house of representatives of the late Congressman Charles A. Lindbergh, the kidnaped baby's grandfather, has offered $50,000 for the child's return.

Mr. Lafferty, who says he "has known Lindy since he was eight," was once a member of congress from Portland, Ore., and now resides here.

If the kidnapers will return the baby unharmed, he offers them legal defense "to the last ditch" in case they are ever arrested.

Briand Rests in State as World Grieves at Passing

By The Associated Press

PARIS, March 8—The body of Aristide Briand, known and loved throughout the world for years as an apostle of peace, lay in state today in the historic foreign office on the Quai D'Orsay, scene of his activities during most of a vigorous lifetime.

Preparations were made for the funeral on Saturday after which he will be taken to the little country home at Cocherel in Brittany which constitutes practically all of the estate he left and which is to be his last resting place.

In the meantime thousands of messages of condolence flowed in from the four corners of the world.

Chancellor Heinrich Bruening of Germany, France's ancient enemy, sent a message as did President Hoover and Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson in the United States.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the foreign office and the body is to lie in state there until then. In obedience to M. Briand's last wish he will be given a simple burial at Cocherel, the country retreat which he is reported to have purchased with the money he received in connection with the award of the Nobel peace prize.

SUSPECT HELD ON HEAVY BOND IN NEW HAVEN

Connecticut Contractor Detained in What Police Say Is "Entirely New Angle" of Lindbergh Kidnaping Case.

FACES TECHNICAL CHARGE OF "IDLENESS"

Two Others Taken into Custody in Boston Railway Station Trying To Telephone Lindberghs; Phone Girl Notifies Police.

By The Associated Press

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 8—Tony Meslo, 43, New Haven contractor, was held in $25,000 bonds today for state police investigating what they described as an entirely new angle in the Connecticut inquiry into the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

State police who arrested Meslo on a technical charge of idleness declined to discuss his connection with the case. The police said information received from Meslo had centered the investigation of the new angle in Colchester.

Meslo was arraigned in city court today and the case was continued until Thursday to permit sufficient time for investigation.

Meslo, who says he has lived in New Haven 19 years, was seized last night and questioned for two hours.

State police checked a story Saturday night that a baby had been given treatment for a cold at a Colchester physician's office, but it was not announced whether there was any connection between Meslo's arrest and that inquiry.

The doctor said to have treated the child refused to comment at that time, officers said, but they questioned other persons in the neighborhood.

Colchester in the eastern central part of Connecticut, is a rather sparsely settled region, although many visitors take cottages near it in the summer.

No Sign of Light in Week's Mystery

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 8—It is a week to the day—and dust films the toys in the silent nursery of the Sourland hills.

The baby? There has been no word of his whereabouts.

Letters: yes, but when it comes to the where and when of the baby's return, they are vague. Some authorities believe that two letters received Sunday were authentic; that they came from the men who kidnaped Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., a week ago tonight.

Child Reported Safe

The two letters, which The Associated Press heard last night on authority it regards as reliable had been received from the kidnapers, carried information that the baby was safe. One was typed, the other written. Both were on the same kind of stationery. The Associated Press' authority said the notes apparently came from the same source as the original ransom note which, although never revealed, is said to have been left on the window sill by the kidnapers.

Hundreds of letters purporting to have been written by the abductors have been received, most of them obviously false. The fact that neither the Lindberghs nor state police has made public the exact contents of the original note has tended to cast doubt in the minds of many newspapermen of its existence.

The state of New Jersey made another gesture of helpfulness last night. It was the announcement by Governor Moore that if the Lindberghs wished he would withdraw all police so that the kidnapers might negotiate directly with him without fear of conflict with the law.

Assurance for Kidnapers

The governor announced also that "if the kidnapers wish to get in touch with Col Lindbergh they can do so by mail with perfect security."

He said: "Only such mail as contains leads or tips is turned over to the police. The integrity of Col. Lindbergh is so beyond question that the kidnapers can

Two Arrested at Boston Station

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Mass., March 8— The statements of Earle Edwards, 40, of Derry, N. H., to a fellow train passenger that his father-in-law, who he said was an amauteur fortune-teller, had divulged important clues in the Lindbergh kidnaping case, caused a flurry of excitement today. It resulted in Edwards and his newly made friend, Samuel Black, 51, of Lawrence, being taken to police headquarters for questioning. Black quoted Edwards as saying he would transmit the information to Lindbergh if he had sufficient funds. Black agreed to finance a telephone call to the Lindbergh home and, Black said, Edwards was in the booth putting the call through when the arrests were made after the call was reported by the telephone operator.

LINDY'S HOME CIRCLE PROBED

Police Say Possibility of Finding Clue in Household Is Still Considered.

By The Associated Press

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 8—Police revealed today that they have been investigating the possibility that some member of the Lindbergh household was involved in the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby a week ago today.

That such investigation was still going on was acknowledge by Col. H. Norman Schwartzkopf, superintendent of state police, who is in general charge of the police search for the kidnapers.

Question List Submitted

In accordance with procedure established by state police a list of questions was submitted by the press this morning to Colonel Schwartzkopf at the Lindbergh home. He made his replies by telephone after consultation with the Lindberghs or their representatives.

One of the questions read:

"The refusal of state police to answer any questions pertaining to a possibility that a servant or employe of the Lindbergh home was involved in the kidnaping has created a general impression that such a theory is the most plausible now held by police. Do police care to say anything that will exonerate any or all members of the household?"

To this, Col. Schwartzkopf replied: ?

"Investigation incomplete."

Clues? By the hundred. They bob up everywhere—and wilt under the burning light of eager law.

Suggestions? Every mail brings them, but most of them are worthless.

The world itself has turned detective. Never has there been a manhunt even approaching the

This action was taken on request of New Jersey state police, who told the Philadelphia authorities possibly "some line can be obtained on their method of working."

DUPLEX, RESIDENCE DAMAGED BLAZE

Sparks on Shingle Roof Cause of Two Fires; Damage $1,600.

Sparks falling on a shingle roof from a chimney, are believed by Fire Chief T. J. McFarland to have been responsible for a fire which did approximately $1,600 damage to two dwellings on north State street late yesterday afternoon. Almost the entire roof was burned from a duplex occupied by the families of R. I Darby and D R. Reiff while the dwelling occupied by Harry N Shuster, next door, was damaged to the extent of $75 by sparks which set fire to the roof and by blistered paint

The fire, when discovered by a passerby, had gained considerable headway, and fanned by the high wind, had spread over almost the entire roof when firemen from the No 3 station arrived The fire had also spread to the attic floor and plaster was dropping from the ceiling in the Reiff apartment on the second floor when firemen arrived

Two lines of hose were laid and, handicapped by the high wind, the firemen fought for nearly an hour to prevent the fire from reaching the first floor of the duplex Canvas spread over the furniture in both apartments prevented a further lost from water

Members of the two families who were home at the time, were unaware of the fire until warned by a passerby Neighbors called the fire department.

leader, would be in it. Foster was not identified in the crowd, but he and William Reynolds, described by police as a Communist agitator were sought

Those of the marchers who talked to newspapermen after the battle declared they themselves were not Communists. They said the demonstrators hoped to send in two representatives to ask Henry Ford to employ a large number of men.

The opposing forces accused each other of inciting the tragic conclusion to the march.

Report Six Shots Fired

Police said six shots from the demonstrators, fired from behind a parked car, started the fight The marchers, who passed through a tear gas bomb attack and withstood freezing water from fire hose before reaching the plant, said police started the firing They claimed to have fought only with bricks and stones.

The marchers, who assembled in Detroit and marched two miles to the plant, drove before them with a shower of stones the 30 man detail of Dearborn police which attempted to halt them with tear gas at the city limits

As they approached the gate of the Ford plant, streams of water which froze where it struck were turned on the crowd from an overhead bridge.

Every observer had a different story of what happened then, but they were agreed that Bennett drove through the crowd in an automobile.

Tells of Attack on Bennett

Detective Hugh Quinn told reporters he was standing within five feet of Bennett when a man approached and fired at Bennett. Quinn said that before he could draw his own gun, Bennett returned the fire and his assailant fell dead

An eye witness said police were lined up beneath the viaduct and that as the marchers approached, some one called out, "if you come on you're going to get it." They came on, and pistols and shotguns sprayed lead through the crowd A Ford employe said between 200 and 300 shots were fired.

HOUSE CLEARS WAY FOR NEW TAX BILL

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 8 A sprint to clear decks for the expected scrap on the new billion dollar tax bill, the house leadership brought up for action today the Norris-LaGuardia anti-injunction bill, passed overwhelmingly a week ago by the senate.

Sought for years by organized labor, this legislation, which outlaws the "yellow dog" contract, was expected to pass before this evening's adjournment. After disposing of it the house expects to act on pending bills in a day and night session tomorrow, taking up the tax question Thursday.

In view of determined opposition which is shaping against its principal provision, a 2 25 per cent manufacturers' sales tax, it will take until next week to pass the bill, one faction is seeking to supplant this sales provision with a tax on beer containing 2.73 percent alcohol by weight.

Troopers Face Storm's Blast in Child Hunt

By The Associated Press

HOPEWELL, N. J., March 8 Troopers with chattering teeth, hampered by the storm that swept the Sourland country today, picked up the task of hunting the Lindbergh baby.

A 65-mile wind that whistled through ghostly farm houses, long abandoned, flattened the state policemen's tents yesterday and scattered the fires round which they gathered for warmth

Gathering in shacks fronting old wagon roads, some of them dating from the pre revolutionary era, they stuffed their coats in panes of windows, to keep out the blast that blew across the valleys.

For the first time yesterday the troopers restricted the area forbidden to motorists They drew back their outposts three quarters of a mile toward the entrance of the Lindbergh estate

Whether this was to coax the kidnapers to send an emissary to the Lindberghs or simply because the storm made curious motorists less eager to approach the estate was not known

Bad weather made the emergency landing field on Peter Voorhees' farm more hazardous than ever. One plane chartered by newspapermen nosed over when a shifting wind caught it. Only the most expert airmen, such as Clyde Pangborn and Charles Stoffer, can take off and land on it without disaster

SCIENCE CAN COMBAT KIDNAPER

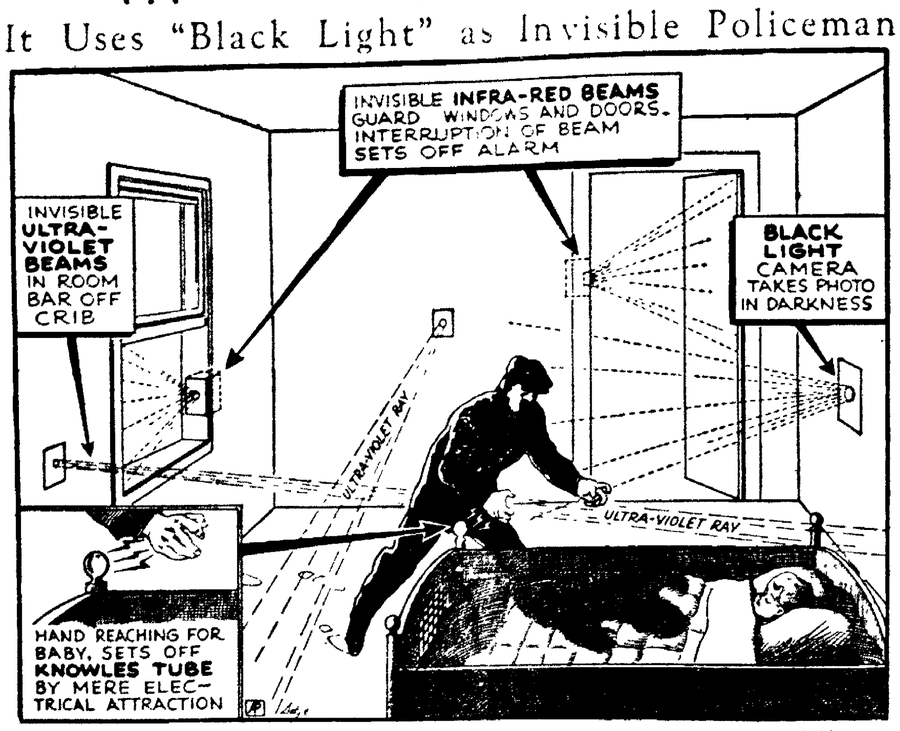
It Uses "Black Light" as Invisible Policeman



INVISIBLE INFRA-RED BEAMS GUARD WINDOWS AND DOORS. INTERRUPTION OF BEAM SETS OFF ALARM
INVISIBLE ULTRA-VIOLET BEAMS IN ROOM BAR OFF CRIB
ULTRA-VIOLET RAY
ULTRA-VIOLET RAY
HAND REACHING FOR BABY, SETS OFF KNOWLES TUBE BY MERE ELECTRICAL ATTRACTION

Above are shown methods science has devised to combat kidnapers. They include invisible rays playing through nursery which sound an alarm when interrupted by an intruder; a hidden camera which takes a plain photograph in darkness unknown to kidnaper; and an alarm tube which picks electric emanations from hand reaching for baby.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Writer)

NEW YORK - In 'black light" science has a solution for protecting babies from kidnapers of the type wro broke into the Lindbergh home.

Some of these protectors already are in use, invisible beams of two kinds of "black light" infra-red and ultra-violet, which fall like protective bars around baby cradles.

Other devices, but which are not yet in use, would photograph the kidnaper plainly in pitch darkness There is also the Knowles tube, so sensitive that no beam nor contact is necessary. A kidnaper's hand reaching past one of these into the baby's crib would set off the tube by mere electrical capacity present in all human hands

These devices are explained by Dr Phillips Thomas, research engineer of the Westinghouse company.

"A number of wealthy men," he says "have had their homes and offices equipped with photo-electric cell devices used in conjunction with ultra-ray right These rays are invisible both in lighted and darkened rooms, and therefore, it is impossible for an intruder to move about without being detected, as the rays can be placed at various angles.

"In a number of cases, every door and window of the home has been equipped with them There are many duties that these 'electric eyes' can do as guardians; for instance, by placing these invisible beams preferably the infra red ray type tube across a doorway or window, an intruder would, when passing through, sound an alarm without knowing when or how he had done so

"There are a number of cases where this invisible policeman is used as a protection of nurseries. This calls for a number of invisible light beams, each falling on a photo tube, two of which are projected across a crib in which a child is sleeping

"In one case, the application is such that it can turn on, automatically, all the lights in the house and floodlight the entire grounds surrounding it

'It is quite feasible to arrange so that a photograph of an intruder could be obtained without his knowledge It would be a simple matter to set off a hidden camera with these invisible rays, thereby giving positive identification to the culprit"

The newest of all these possibilities was reported to the scientific world recently at Boston a new photographic film so sensitive to infra red that a flatiron took its own picture by its heat alone

Identifies Johnson

A man named Fernino, who said a man had given him a lift in an automobile between New York and Connecticut last Wednesday, identified Johnson as that man early today Newark police, admitting the identification, would not comment Fernino's story was interpreted as substantiating Johnson's account of his whereabouts the day following the kidnaping

Col. Lindbergh has not been interviewed concerning the case in seven days during which the search has been going on His authorized spokesmen, aside from state police have been almost as difficult to approach, and the facts they have imparted have been crumbs as compared to the world's growing appetite for definite information of the progress of the search

Sole Object of Parents

The sole object of Col and Mrs Lindbergh, as their spokesmen have indicated repeatedly, is the returning of their child. Apprehension of the kidnapers has not been considered.

The naming of Salvy Spitale and Irving Bitz, well known in the New York gang world, as go-betweens had produced no known results today Spitale has made a public appeal to the kidnapers to communicate with him, assuring them they will be protected if the child is returned.

More and more, as the days have passed without the appearance of any definite proposition from the kidnapers, the fear has been expressed by newsmen close to the search that perhaps the child has been slain. Police, however have expressed confidence that he is alive

There have been no actual arrests Henry Johnson is held at Newark without any charge It was reported he might be released today.

A sensational report was published in New York City today that negotiations actually had been opened, that a reputable New York lawyer (not named) had telephoned Col Lindbergh last night asking if the Lindberghs were ready to "do business" with the kidnapers The report added that on Col. Lindbergh's invitation the lawyer had gone to the estate near here, and that he had gone into conference with Col. Lindbergh

Reporters here and state police denied this in toto. The reporters have every road under close observation, and no person entered the estate during the night. State troops guarding the estate were equally emphatic.

The Lindbergh home was dark during the early morning hours The parents were seeking the sleep that comes only fitfully to them these nights.

The Underworld May Help William H. Mullins Stabbed for a Picture Briand Was for France

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

NO DEFINITE NEWS of the Lindbergh child when this was written, at half past 5 yesterday. On Sunday, while police were guarding the Lindbergh house to prevent intrusion, and prayers were offered in thousands of churches asking the divine help, a letter was sent to newspapers inviting the assistance of Irving Bitz and Salvatore Spitale, two members of New York's "underworld," as go-betweens, to help in the recovery of the child.

The absolute "higher-ups" in the racketeering world declined to enter the Lindbergh case, saying, "Newspaper front pages are poison to us," but they are said to have approved the use of Bitz and Spitale. The racketeer rulers are glad to have Bitz and Spitale make themselves as useful as possible, because they "wish to check the growing hostility to racketeering."

• • •

ONE WELL ACQUAINTED with gangster methods said yesterday: "Now that Spitale is on the side of law and order other gangsters that might give information will fear to do so. They will say to Spitale, 'You have left racketeering and turned cop.'

"And if the kidnapers of the child are amateurs, not professional criminals, as 'experts' allege, they also would fear to deal with racketeers."

However, nothing proves that the crime, committed with carefully concealed finger-prints and footprints, is that of an amateur criminal. If the abductors are professionals, the selection of two underworld characters as go-betweens may be the wisest possible step.

Yesterday Salvatore Spitale and Irving Bitz had disappeared from their usual haunts on errands said to be of importance.

Strange is the curiosity of modern civilization. If those two men should return with the baby, safe and well, they probably could, for a while, make in vaudeville more money than the underworld could give them.

WILLIAM H. MULLINS, who died on Sunday, at Salem, O., was a typical American, capable, energetic, creating his own industry and building it up into his old age. Salem, and the state of Ohio, will regret his loss, because he supplied employment to many men, for many years, and improved American production methods in several lines.

Young Americans can learn from his career that success is always possible for those that combine intelligence with willingness to work.

When a boy, he bought what was left of a locomotive that had been in a collision, ran the wreck into a roundhouse, hired mechanics to help repair it, sold it for $8,000 profit and started a little factory at Salem.

In that factory, changing products as times changed, he manufactured cornices for buildings, statues, including those of Kruger in South Africa and of Liberty on New York's city hall, boats of metal, and automobile bodies. He gave those that worked with him a share in his success and profits.

His life honored his father and his mother, and was a blessing to his community.

WITH GANDHI in jail and Hindu disturbers that worry Britain quiescent, Mohammedans in India begin making serious trouble. It started strangely.

A Hindu bookseller in Calcutta sold a book containing pictures of Mohammed. The Koran, largely inspired by the Hebrew Old Testament, takes seriously the order: "Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above or that is in the earth beneath."

A young Mohammedan, shocked by the sin committed in showing Mohammed's picture, stabbed the Hindu bookseller to death. British law condemned the Mohammedan to death. That is why the Mohammedans are threatening England and demanding commutation of the murderous Mohammedan's sentence.

ARISTIDE BRIAND, who dreamed of creating a "United States of Europe," is dead at 69. He was a French statesman and he worked for France. He did not worry about the United States, would not have sent a French soldier or a French franc to this country if it had been on fire from Alaska to Florida. He was French, worked for France, and had no thought for anything else.

The power of France, her domination in Europe, the fact that she is the greatest "gold country" in the world, are due to the fact that she produces such men as Briand.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, March 9

THE astrological forecast for this day presages an important change which may do much to push affairs into goals of fulfillment and fruition. The prospects are excellent for recognition, assistance and advancement at the hands of those in places of power and authority. It is a time for aiming at these with the assurance of the attainment of high ambitions, albeit accompanied by some commotion of radical change, under the impetus of highly charged forces and faculties. But make contracts and sign papers with precaution.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of important change having a radical influence on the attainment of the highest ambitions. The preferment, favors and cooperation of those in high places are assured. A child born on this day should be energetic, resourceful and ambitious and should reach high place in life through its enterprise as well as by popularity.

Emblem Stolen Three Years Ago Returned Here

An Elks lodge emblem made into a watch fob, stolen three years ago during a burglary of the residence of the late Charles E. Gompf of State street and Delaware avenue, has been returned to Mrs. Gompf following its recovery in Mansfield.

A Mansfield resident found the fob, an insignia of the Elks lodge, lying on the sidewalk in that city several weeks ago. He turned it over to the secretary of the Elks lodge in Mansfield.

The secretary knew by the number "32" on the fob that it belonged to a member of Marion Lodge No. 32, B. P. O. Elks. He forwarded it to E. H. Huggins, secretary of the local lodge.

From the initials "C. E. G." on the fob and from identification by a local jeweler from whom the fob had been purchased for $40, Mr. Huggins identified it as the property of Mr. Gompf, and turned it over to Mrs. Gompf.

The emblem was attached to a watch and chain stolen from the Gompf residence three years ago.

A tiny gas flame takes the place of all moving parts

ONLY GAS—the silent fuel—could make good automatic refrigeration even more enjoyable and convenient by removing all noise. And GAS has done it!

With no moving parts, there can be nothing in the GAS refrigerator to make noise. A tiny GAS flame takes the place of machinery. In thousands of homes where GAS refrigeration has been used for many months the GAS refrigerator is just as silent as the day it was installed—and it will continue to be for years and years.

And, too, GAS has made it a matter of thrift to have automatic refrigeration in the home. It costs so little—the operating cost of the GAS refrigerator actually is less than four cents a day!

If you haven't investigated this modern, magic-like method of refrigeration, come in at your earliest convenience and inspect it in its beautiful cabinet.

MAYNARD, Mass.—School Superintendent Charles H. Walker, in his annual report, quoted Peter the Hermit, who died in 1115, to show that young people of every age always have been criticized by their elders.

In the 12th century Peter the Hermit spoke of the youth of his day in words that are almost identical with those often applied to modern youth by their elders.

"The world is passing through troubled times. The young people of today have no reverence for parents or old age. As for the girls, they are forward, immodest, and unwomanly in speech and dress," the medieval monk wrote.

JEAN: Tell me, Dot, how often do you wash a girdle?
DOT: Every day or so—that keeps it dainty
JEAN: But doesn't it stretch and get flabby?
DOT: Not a bit. I wash it the way that preserves ELASTICITY*. Then it always fits perfectly . . .

*The Lux Way to preserve ELASTICITY
How flattering a new foundation garment is! Even if it's the merest wisp of a girdle its elasticity makes it fit smoothly and yet so lightly!
But when this precious elasticity is gone, the most expensive garment is flabby, ill-fitting—actually disfiguring! It's because gentle Lux preserves elasticity that it keeps your foundations as perfect in fit as when they were new.
Wash this 2-minute way: Use lukewarm water—Lux dissolves instantly in it. Squeeze suds through fabric, rinse twice.
Lux every day or so, for foundations absorb perspiration. Perspiration acids discolor and rot fabrics.
Don't rub foundations with cake soap—this destroys elasticity, leaves the garment flabby, ill-fitting.
Avoid ordinary soaps—cakes, powders, chips. These often contain harmful alkali which weakens threads, fades color. Lux has no harmful alkali. Anything safe in water alone is safe in Lux.
LUX for underthings keeps them like new in spite of frequent washing

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To quickly end stubborn coughs due to colds, it is important to soothe the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system internally to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-mixture recipe, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, saves money, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never be without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest medicinal agents for severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Boys' Desire to Steal Autos Only Natural, Professor Says

By International News Service

NEW YORK—When certain boys take to stealing automobiles or getting into other minor criminal practices they are acting in a perfectly normal manner—just as other boys are when they go to Sunday school or join a debating team.

This conclusion has been reached by Lowell S. Selling, of the Institute for Juvenile Research and the Department of Criminology, University of Illinois.

Opinion Based on Study

Professor Selling bases the opinion on a recent study of 100 boys in a state corrective institution for stealing motor cars. He compared their mental attitudes with those of 100 other delinquent boys, largely guilty of different crimes, and 100 boys not guilty of any wrongdoing.

He found that most of the young auto thieves stole cars just because it was the thing to do at their age in the class of the population where they were being reared.

"The reasons for this," he said, "are quite simple. Children with ordinary mental mechanisms growing up in areas where the accepted behavior is one of delinquency, develop along more or less fixed lines.

Environment Affects Attitude

"These lines are determined by such factors as unstable homes, poor parental control, and other conditions which cause the children to think differently from ordinary children of their age, even though their machinery for thinking is the same.

"In the past it has been believed that feeblemindedness was the primary cause of crime, but in the particular group studied, feebleminedness played only a small part, for there were many with average and even high average intelligence.

"In the same way it was not possible to find abnormal emotional relationships, for the majority of their homes, parents and brothers and sisters than were an unselected group of delinquent children.

"An additional influence which causes children to turn to automobile stealing is the ennui due to truanting from school which may in turn be due to many factors such as inability to adjust in school, therats of older boys making the child stay out of school, and the lack of interesting material presented by the school as compared to delinquent interests."

SCIENTISTS SEEKING UNIVERSAL LANGUAGE

New York Savant Advocates System Clear to All Nations.

By International News Service

NEW YORK—Scientists now demand a "universal" language into which all scientific papers can be translated so that new discoveries will be immediately available to them from any source.

Previously the chief advocates of a "universal" language have been the sociologically inclined individuals who have tried to promote the use of Esperanto. Their interest was to obtain better understanding between peoples as a whole.

Now Dr. Alfred D. Flinn, director of the Engineering Foundation, this city, urges the adoption of a universal language with an elaborate set of technical and mathematical symbols. He would not have it used merely for literary or spiritual expression.

His chief desire is to make it possible for a Finn, Laplander or Japanese to set forth his latest scientific work in terms which would be readily understandable to any Englishman, Dane or Mexican scientist.

"Though rich in literature and tradition, the existing natural languages are unsuitable for many purposes," Dr. Flinn said. "How long shall the world lack an effective universal medium for communication and record, and for the 'furtherance of the good of mankind,' the ultimate objective in the charter of the Engineering Foundation?

"Primarily the universal language should be designed for uses demanding exactness, clarity, brevity and performance. Freedom from idiom and disorderly change are essential. Preferentially it should be suitable for international communication in the sciences, statecraft, commerce, the technologies, law, finance and economics.

"The new language should have a sensible name, free from the taint of nationalism or partisanship, one which will not invite ridicule or opposition."

DANDRUFF A Sure Way to End It

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain ordinary liquid arvon from any drug store. This is all you will need, apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and two or three more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft and look and feel a hundred times better.—Adv.

Notice to All Voters in Marion County

I hereby give notice to all voters in Marion County of the cancellation and withdrawal of any and all campaign literature and verbal statements heretofore put out in Marion County, Ohio, which refer to promises made by me to return to the general fund of the treasury, should I be elected to the office of county recorder, the sum of twenty per cent of my salary. However under Sec. 4785-190 and 4785-191 of the General Code of Ohio also known as the Corrupt Practices Act, any candidate for any office is prohibited to make any promise for the return of a part of any salary as a holder of a public office. Therefore, I am asking that no person vote for me because of any such promise made heretofore.

Otherwise I still stand for the strictest economy possible in my office, should I be elected.

Come to think of it, that feeling is rather general outside Germany.

Either way, no doubt, the matter has been given deep consideration by high-salaried executives of the department.

The Passing of Briand.

Eleven times premier of France, sixteen times foreign minister, a member of twenty-five ministries of the republic, Aristide Briand succumbed to a heart attack in Paris, Monday afternoon, and the French people today mourn the loss of their "Apostle of Peace," who was at the same time one of their greatest patriots.

Like the life stories of so many of the world's notables, present as well as past, who advanced from humble origins to achieve greatness and win the world's acclaim, that of Aristide Briand is inspiring. It's the story of a product of peasant stock, born a son of the soil of rugged Brittany, but in his youth reared in a little inn acquired by his father in the seaport of St. Nazaire, who became an advocate superbly versed in the law, an orator of extraordinary powers, a finished diplomat, a brilliant statesman and in Europe the outstanding champion of peace. Others talked of peace, he not only talked peace, but believed in it and worked for it, and of all the leaders of the one-time allied powers, he was the most conspicuous, if not the only sincere, advocate of generous treatment for Germany.

It is an open question whether history will pay the greater tribute to Briand, the "Apostle of Peace," or Briand, the "Man of Locarno."

First, Get the Man.

The Approach of the presidential primary season, which was opened today with a contest between Franklin D. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith in New Hampshire, focuses attention again on the most difficult part of operating a representative democracy, the involved and often unfair procedure of culling likely candidates from the herd.

In the first decade of this century, experimentation with the primary as a means of selecting candidates was started. The national conventions of 1908 were the first to have in their membership delegates elected directly by the people. It was Oregon which is given the credit for laying the real foundation of the presidential primary movement, however.

Its statute, adopted in 1910, provided not only for direct election of all convention delegates, but for expression of voters' preference for president and vice president. Other states rapidly followed suit, the movement reaching a climax in 1916 when half the states had primary laws of one kind or another.

The 1916 popularity of the primary was the result, it is believed now, of popular resentment against the handling of the nomination in 1912, when William Howard Taft was given the nomination although voters' preference for Theodore Roosevelt was shown in a dozen states. What might have happened following 1916 had the selection of candidates been handled differently represents a lost hope now to primary advocates. It was predicted confidently then that the power of national conventions was broken. Today, however, it is the primary that is on the decline. The convention has gained strength consistently.

In 1916 Woodrow Wilson's nomination was assured, the same as Herbert Hoover's nomination is assured this year. Charles Evans Hughes and Theodore Roosevelt, by refusing to enter the primaries that year, delivered them a blow from which they never have recovered. Minnesota, Iowa, Vermont, Montana, North Carolina, Michigan, Indiana and Alabama have forsaken the method once hailed jubilantly as the salvation of representative government. Twenty states, including Ohio, still are trying to make something out of the wreckage, but neither national convention this year will have a majority of elected or instructed delegates.

The weaknesses of the declining primary system as a means of selecting presidential candidates are readily apparent. The greatest of them, perhaps, is a disinterested public attitude. Another serious flaw is the impossibility of instructing delegates beforehand to meet unforeseen conditions arising in the conventions. There is no uniformity of method or time in the various primaries. Confusion of instructions is common. It is difficult to arrange an understandable ballot. They are expensive both to the public and the candidates. Even after eliminating these flaws there remain two more. The system can be wrecked by favorite son candidates and by refusal of leading candidates to file their names.

Voters are jealous of their right to say who shall and who shall not serve in public office, but their jealousy is translated into action only with extreme difficulty. The mass mind is forceful and positive in choosing between two alternatives, but it is easily confused by the addition of others. Breakdown of presidential primaries has made plain what is becoming increasingly apparent in regard to the primary system generally, that the advantages of enlarging the people's nominal control over the selection of candidates are more fanciful than real. Like the facetious instruction in the bride's cook book "to first get the rabbit," the voter's instruction to the politicians is "first get the man." He will do the rest by making his selection at the election.

That heavily-armed Europe balks at any armament reduction daily becomes more and more evident. Still, a little thing like this shouldn't preclude the delegates to the Geneva conference from having a good time.

The Drift Toward a Sales Tax.

When conservative Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, loosed a trial balloon labeled "General Sales Tax" last fall he knew what he was about. The result, approximately as he would have it, is the structure of the new revenue tax bill, with a broad manufactures sales tax as its foundation. The United States isn't ready for a general sales tax yet, but it is drifting in that direction.

A manufactures sales tax is a poor substitute for a general sales tax, but a good compromise under existing conditions. The sales tax sub-committee recommended a rate of 2½ per cent, after exhaustive studies and careful consultation. Manufacturers paying the tax will pass it on to consumers, of course. The manufacturers, themselves, are taxed on income.

The bill, which should be recognized as an attempt to balance the budget in 1933, will be ready for action by the house this week. It will be opposed for the increases in rates it contains, but its congressional backers have the courage of their convictions that national welfare, not minority welfare, should be the guide for their conduct. Proponents of a general sales tax, which they believe to be the fairest method of taxation, will not be likely to forget that when the United States gets into a tight place, it turns to a sales tax for help and never is disappointed. The drift toward a sales tax is inexorable.

That his wife might collect $285,000 insurance on his life and take the place in society to which she "belonged" and "be happy," a Chicago man last week committed suicide. An unprejudiced conclusion is that the citizen in question placed a far too high valuation on the value of social life.

The suggestion has been made over in England that, if the United States wants to get rid of its kidnappers, gangsters and gunmen, it should adopt the Irish Free State plan of establishing military courts as public safety tribunals from whose decisions there is no right of appeal, holding that a few death sentences by such tribunals would turn the trick. But wouldn't this be playing a low-down trick on the crook lawyers who live off the spoils of crime?

Editorial Opinion.

THE VENOM OF CRIME.

The conviction of Al Capone has been affirmed, unanimously by the United States court of appeals. This spells indorsement and approval of the action and findings of Judge Wilkerson, who could not be "reached" by the powerful Capone influence, and who sentenced the arch gangster to eleven years in a federal prison.

Gangdom is not in the habit of forgetting or forgiving those it terms its enemies, and now that Judge Wilkerson seeks deserved promotion to the appellate bench every force and influence of crime and crooked politics is being assembled to defeat him in this laudable aspiration.

The gangsters want revenge. It is not particularly that they desire revenge because of Capone's conviction. Perhaps many leaders in the underworld are glad that the big shot is now in durance, out of the way, but they recognize in men of the Wilkerson stripe enemies dedicated to the destruction of the entire fabric of lawlessness. Hence the direction of their massed energies to accomplish the judge's defeat in his effort to attain to a higher judicial position.

It is much to be hoped that the evil influences arrayed against him will fail to halt or much impede Judge Wilkerson's progress toward more distinguished honors. This opposition by the criminal element should be mercilessly crushed. To crush it will mean that the American people have won a distinctive battle in the ominous battle between honest citizenship and the malign hosts of crime, so long entrenched behind strong bulwarks of corruption, fear and lawless irresponsibility.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

MUSSOLINI'S PLEA FOR FAT WOMEN.

Even Theodore Roosevelt in his palmiest days never went so far in trying to regulate all the details of the lives of the people in this country as has Premier Mussolini in Italy. His latest blast is against the fad of reducing. In an address to the Italian Medical congress he called on the doctors to do their part in counselling their patients against birth control and also in encouraging better mental and physical life. He declared that the notion that maternity diminishes womanly beauty is a fallacy, and that the opposite is the truth. The Italian birth rate has fallen off during the year, and that is something he regards as a mistake.

But the high light of his address concerns the fallacies of modern civilization. They are prejudices of fashion that end by becoming harmful. I will mention one—the fashion of excessive reducing. This weakens the race and also has economic reactions." In other words, that which may be popular in Hollywood is not to be tolerated in Rome and other parts of Italy. He has a practical remedy. He proposes that each Italian eat two pounds more of rice a year, "thus helping to solve the rice production problem." What the ladies will think of this advice is another thing. It all depends on how you look at it. But imagine the sensation that would be created were President Hoover to make a declaration calling on all of the women of the United States to grow fat.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

TO DEAL WITH THE "KNOWN" CRIMINAL.

Cleveland now has an ordinance aimed at the "known" criminal, that sinister figure who stalks on and off the scene of nearly every gang murder without so much as a finger being laid upon him and who nonchalantly obeys the orders of the prosecuting attorney to come in for a "talk" when there has been an underworld skullduggery.

The Cleveland ordinance is in the nature of an experiment, but it is said to possess teeth. Its value remains to be demonstrated. However, the need of some effective method of dealing with those identified with crime, but wily enough to escape implication to a degree that makes his conviction possible, has long been recognized by honest law enforcement officers.

Every city has such characters and some are nationally known. The police are well aware of their affiliation with lawless gangs, know they derive large profits from crime and are dead certain of their connection with specific criminal episodes—but they can't produce evidence that some smart defense lawyer can't tear down with legal technicalities.

Thus, we have the spectacle of the arrogant gang leader passing the time of day with policemen, maintaining sumptuous living quarters and frequenting public places of amusement, immune from molestation. It is a farcical situation that sadly needs correcting.—Columbus Dispatch.

An Elusive Fact.

Writer says it was a "long time before the theory of prohibition developed into a fact." And it seems it is still more theory that fact.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Pneumonia in Winter Months.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Pneumonia is one of the most fatal of diseases. Although cases may occur at any time of the year, by far the largest number are found in the months of December, January, February and March. Then it is not so much the cold of winter as it is the sudden changes of temperature that serve as causative factors.

Anything that lowers vitality, such as undue fatigue, anxiety, intemperance, poor sanitary surroundings or overcrowding, renders the individual susceptible to the infection. As a matter of fact, these are the underlying causes of many forms of human misery.

Pneumonia, known sometimes as "inflammation of the lungs," is due to infection by a germ known as the "pneumococcus." That is a big name, but it is no bigger than the trouble it causes.

The disease is commonly ushered in by a chill and fever. When the trouble is located in the lower part of the lung, there is usually pain in the region of the nipple of the affected side. The pain is severe, of a stabbing character, and is made worse by deep breathing or by coughing. The cough is always distressing, short and painful. The expectoration for the first few days is largely of mucus, but later it becomes tinged with blood.

Pneumonia is a self limiting disease, running a pretty definite course. It usually terminates in a "crisis" on the fifth or seventh day. In some cases the crisis is delayed until the fourteenth, or even the twenty first day.

The symptoms of crisis are a sudden fall of temperature and profuse perspiration. At this particular time, the turning point of the illness, there may be failure of the heart, and the utmost care must be exercised to prevent a collapse.

After the crisis, in favorable cases, the patient becomes slowly but progressively better. At the end of a few weeks he is restored to health.

In the lung itself there is at first a congestion in the parts affected; then an effusion of blood renders the involved area of the lung solid and incapable of doing its work. After the disease has run its course the blood is gradually absorbed, and the lung is more able to function normally.

During an attack of pneumonia, nursing is of the utmost importance. The patient must be watched closely for any sign of heart failure or exhaustion. Light, stimulating food must be given at regular intervals. This is necessary to keep up the strength of the patient, and no exertion must be permitted on his part.

Pleurisy is a complication frequently encountered. There may be a collection of pus in the pleural cavity, the space between the lungs and the lining of the ribs. This is not uncommon, and it foretells that recovery will be very slow.

The medical treatment of pneumonia is dependent upon the symptoms of the individual case. Sometimes a serum has been used with favorable results, but in other cases this treatment is of no avail.

Plenty of fresh air in the sick room is absolutely essential. To close the windows and keep out the air is a mistake.

Pneumonia is mildly infectious. The nurse and members of the family should see that the patient's sputum is destroyed. The cloths or gauze used as handkerchiefs are burned.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES

Miss F.S. Q.—I would like your advice relative to the operation for the correction of cross-eyes. Is this really effective? What is the nature of the operation and where should it be done?

A.—See an eye specialist who will give you full information and advice after he has examined the patient and determined the degree of vision. Such operation does not involve the seeing part of the eye and there is no possibility of losing the sight as a result.—Copyright, 1932, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

The Way of Hitler.

BY EDWARD L. DUESS

Berlin, March 8 (AP)—About 12,000 men stood at attention sometimes at attention according to military commands parked by company streets for five hours with no supper so that their leader—Adolph Hitler—might see them in review. And then at midnight they marched home in many without overcoats, trudged home as a matter could because they didn't have six cents for a trolley ride.

"Go home and get some sleep. Don't allow yourselves to be provoked," was the final command shouted at them by one of Hitler's aides just before they broke up for their trek to all corners of Nazi Berlin. The Communists were not out that night, so there was not a single fight.

But there was hardly a one of them that didn't walk the last mile swelling with pride, happy because the leader looked me square in the eye."

• • •

The next day a man whose ancestry predates the Hohenzollerns told me that his eighteen-year-old son who as a child had rocked nonchalantly on the knee of Kaiser Wilhelm II, tossed and turned all night because Adolph Hitler, about to be a house painter, had stood before him for a fleeting second and "looked him in the eye."

Hitler spoke to "his men" only for twenty minutes, a speech which few of them—standing at attention in rows, elbows touching, in that giant hall—heard, they said. Hitler addressed not a personal word to any of them. As he paced before each four rows of his men, halting at every step he gave the Fascist salute once at the beginning of each column by throwing his right hand limply back over his shoulder.

The speech itself addressed only six words to Hitler en masse, and those on commands issued from the speakers' stand far away. They shouted "Heil, Heil, Heil," when Hitler took his place to speak, and again "Heil, Heil, Heil" when he finished.

Not a cheer, not a clap of the hands, nothing but the continual hum of a mass, which though standing apparently motionless, does move. Then they thundered the National Socialist anthem and "Deutschland Ueber Alles" on command.

The psychologist who can explain that phenomenon—the politician who can explain it—has not yet been found. Such power was held by a man who at the moment was a citizen of no country on earth, who possesses no personal magnetism, who has not a single battle deed to his credit that might have won him fame and popularity as fame is commonly won. His war record as a volunteer with the German forces was flawlessly courageous, but hardly more so than that of a million others. His ability as a public speaker is laudable, but there are better speakers in German than he. He works himself up to such a high pitch of emotion that he shouts and his overstrained voice cracks.

When Hull Reviewed His Army.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH

Allen Trimble, afterward governor of the state, described in his autobiography a very amusing incident that occurred at Dayton at the outbreak of the War of 1812, when General Hull went there to take command of the troops in that vicinity. Trimble was not in the service, but he accompanied his brother, William, to Dayton with a wagon load of blankets which he had collected from persons in the neighborhood, and was at the camp when Hull arrived.

With his staff, Hull started to review his troops, but the horse of one member of the staff took fright at the flapping of the colors as they rode by the second regiment, and broke into a gallop and the horse ridden by the general followed suit. The general's horse was a hard rider, and the general would bounce into the air at each step. His hat blew off and his feet lost the stirrups, and the general dropped the reins and grabbed the horse's mane, hanging on for dear life.

"By this time," wrote Trimble, "the yells of the spectators and some of the wild volunteers rendered the scene one of the most amusing I have ever witnessed at a military review." Finding the attempt to review the troops not so good, the general decided to take a position and had the army pass in review before him, with two orderlies holding his mount. Later the army was formed into a hollow square, from within which General Hull addressed the men.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE

New York, March 8.—The speak-easy invasion into profits of respectable restaurants and hotel dining-rooms has aroused proprietors there to demand the law defying vintners be curbed. Or else. That is to say many who have been observing decorum will sell liquor.

Only two hotels made a fair profit during the past year. Economic eclipse, of course, contributed to such deficit, but it is declared many hotels and restaurants might have weathered the storm had the many-splendored speakeasies not drawn so much patronage.

The speaks not only served best food at cheap prices, but served it with more of the flubdubbery called class. Furthermore they have two orchestras and strolling musicians as a general thing. The carting away of equipment has slowed up some of the places, but not enough to aid respectables.

Outlaw salons attract the efficient waiters, captains and often headwaiters because of larger tips. Meals for two dollars could easily be served profitably at five dollars where the law is obeyed. In one such place, a recent Saturday night—the best night of the week—there were but seven diners.

One of the speakies features Brillat Savarin's conception of the perfect luncheon—a consomme, a slice of turbot au gratan, broiled sliced thin and a glass of sherry. Priced at one dollar, there is no profit, but it makes the place talked about and brings many direct customers.

• • •

I killed a half hour in an institut de beaute this afternoon while my wife had a shampoo. There is a multiple-mirrored splendor about such salons that almost touches off giddiness. Gorgeous creatures emerge marceled, manicured, massaged and aflame with a cosmetic glow. There is incessant chirp of the avian and a tinkerous background of lights and perfumes. A de luxe barber shop seems thing-like in comparison. Almost slumming.

Windows in seedy cafes display dishes garnished with wilted parsley and bills of fare in purple ink. About the people is an apologetic strain, low-pitched voices and a melting into shadows, appealing humility and decency. They need charity more than most folk, but will not accept it.

• • •

At breakfast, a gentleman I esteem related a story he had told to but one other. It recounted his struggle to lift himself out of an environment near Chatham square. ## A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington, March 8—William H. Anderson, of New York, who came down to Washington to protest the nomination of Judge Cardozo to the supreme court, doubtless will remember his experience for a long time hence.

A big, broad-shouldered senator from Arizona by the name of Henry Fountain Ashurst made sure of that.

Anderson, former superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league in New York, laid his charges against Cardozo before three senators—Robinson, of Indiana; Schall, of Minnesota, and Ashurst.

But it was Ashurst whom Anderson will think of in connection with the event.

Ashurst always has a big time when he finds himself in a position such as this.

Suave, the acme of politeness and gallantry, the Arizonan has a way all his own in handling a witness. He was in fine form the morning of Anderson's appearance.

• • •

Wearing a frock coat, horn-rimmed pince-nez poised delicately between two fingers, he sat directly across from Anderson. His manner is such as to completely disarm a witness.

He listens attentively, apparently absorbed in what the witness is saying. He smiles encouragingly from time to time, nods his head in approval when it appears that the witness has scored a good point.

It is not very long before the witness becomes convinced that if he has no other friend in the room he can certainly rely on Ashurst.

They find out later, however, as Anderson did, that behind that sunny Ashurst exterior lies a mailed fist.

He tore into Anderson several times during that brief hearing in the senate judiciary committee room in such fashion as to make it long remembered.

• • •

There was one instance in particular. Anderson in attacking Cordozo, referred to his father, also a judge, as being under the influence of Tammany while he was on the bench.

Ashurst stopped him in his tracks.

"The gentleman is not trying to make us believe that the sins of the father are to be found in the son?"

And before Anderson could say any more, Ashurst struck.

"I would remind the gentleman that we will hear all the charges he has to make. But they must be fair ones. We don't hit below the belt in the senate ever. We hit each other frequently and hard, but never below the belt."

The manner in which he said that was the thing. It must have struck Anderson with telling effect. He attempted an explanation, but it didn't seem to quite get across.

He finished soon after that.

CHAPTER SIX

Nobody Loves Us

IT had been some one's birthday anniversary; there had been wild speeding from one dancing place to another.

And leaving the Rainbow gardens, where they had gone last as a proper wind-up of their fling, Marge had asked Gar to drive her car home. "It's doing the queerest things Gar. You're more familiar with it than Red." Marge always insisted upon using her own car and because it was a French model, of dashing lines and amazing speed, her escorts invariably were quite willing to accede to her whim.

Tonight, without a moment's hesitation, Gar had sprung into the driver's seat, thrown the clutch into gear with a masterful air and shot off into the deserted road, leaving Kitty behind with Red Harding.

"Nobody loves us," Red had grumbled, putting his arm through Kitty's.

She'd hated being left alone with Red; she'd been afraid of his driving. Gar's desertion, without a word of regret, had hurt her to the quick. She had thought that when they were home he would tell her he was sorry but instead he was charging her with coldness to his friends.

She dared not trust herself to answer. If she did she might tell him that she was tired to death of his friends, that tonight she didn't think she liked any of them, Marge or Diana or Isabel Peters, Buck Sewall, Tubby—even stupid, good-natured Tubby, Red, least of all. Red was Gar's best friend, Gar was always quoting his opinions, looking to him to suggest new places to go, new amusements; the others showed him this same deference, yet Kitty had not been able to like him.

Nice—oh, yes, they had been nice enough to her, these friends of his, but that was the limit of their attention; without Gar they would not know she was around.

She had been more quiet than usual tonight—somehow, tonight she had not been able even to pretend any gayety. She'd felt out of the picture, as Gar would put it, uncomfortable, in her rust-colored dress, like a sparrow among bright-plumaged birds. Tonight she'd felt critical of Gar's friends; couldn't they sometimes have good times in their homes?

Tonight she'd felt even sharply critical of Gar. He shouldn't spend so much money—worse, he should not borrow from Red. He had borrowed quite openly, at the start of their evening. Kitty had seen Red add two figures to a little column on the page of a memorandum book.

"You don't have to put on such an almighty righteous air when you turn down a drink, either, Kit," Gar pursued. "They're all laughing at you. They think you're a prig. That small-town stuff doesn't go in my crowd."

Hurt on hurt, he hadn't meant to look almighty righteous. She wasn't a prig. But she wouldn't quarrel and it would mean a quarrel if she spoke now.

But she could not keep back her tears. They came in a flood. She despised herself for her weakness even when Gar's arms went remorsefully around her.

"Oh, come now, Kit—I was only telling you for your own good."

She clung to him until she got control of herself. I didn't feel well tonight, Gar. I need sleep and exercise—in fresh air. I'm not used to eating breakfast at noon-time and going to bed at dawn."

"You ought to begin golf, Kit. That'll set you up. I'll sign you on for some lessons with the pro out at the club. Marge and I are taking Red and Di on for a foursome tomorrow and you can take a lesson then if Deetman has any time. It's going to be a good match—the losers have got to buy the dinners."

Kitty smiled in agreement of the plan. She agreed with Gar that Marge had looked stunning tonight last night, with a glance at the little clock on Gar's desk.

"It's habit," she thought. "Small-town habit," she added, remembering Gar's criticism. She remembered it without hurt, now, but with a bewildered sense that things had started to go wrong and that in some way it must have been her fault. They'd almost quarreled.

She'd dress quietly and take a walk while Gar slept. It would clear her head, help her to think things out.

She knew the routine of the house. Mrs. Frew breakfasted in her room, after which she closeted herself in her "office" until luncheon time. She rarely lunched at home. Carol slept late, then followed her own pursuits, usually out of the house.

There was a little square of park within a few blocks of the house. She'd walk around it a few times and then sit down on one of the benches.

When she finished her walk Kitty chose a bench. When she set herself to the task of thinking things out she grew confused again, a little frightened. They had so nearly quarreled!

Gar thought she was standoffish with his friends, a prig, when she was only shy with them. They made her feel that way; more often than not she did not know what they were talking about and no one of them, unless it was Tubby in a burst of devotion, bothered to tell her. Left alone with Marge and Diana, in the cloak-rooms, or waiting for the men in lobbies or on the Country club veranda, she'd always felt a little self-conscious, ill-at-ease; in their chatter about the newest in dress and shops and barbers, and rouges, perfumes, one another's clothes and the clothes on the women about them, they never acted wholly aware that she was with them.

"I'm not envious," Kitty sighed, dolefully. "I'm not jealous." No, even though Marge often coolly appropriated Gar she was not jealous. She was not so small-townish but that she could laugh at it.

They never talked now of that home they were going to have. They'd let themselves get caught into a whirl of gayety that was crowding out the real joy of their marriage.

She'd talk it all over with Gar; he'd had his play, he would want to begin to work that they might be independent of every one. She flushed, thinking of Gar's debt to Red. But she would not reproach Gar with that; she'd be very tactful, very loving.

She walked home eagerly.

She was a little startled to find that it was past 1 o'clock. Gar must have worried as to her whereabouts, thought perhaps that she was lost. She could well get lost, for she knew scarcely anything yet of the city.

Pound had come in with Gar's breakfast tray.

"Is the Mother downstairs?" Gar asked him.

"She's gone out, Mr. Gar. She's lunching out."

At that Gar frowned. "That's bad. Why didn't you call me, Kit?" He surveyed his breakfast with distaste. His eyes were still heavy with sleep. "I've got to touch the mother for some money. It'd look nice if Marge and I lost this afternoon and I had to let her pay for the dinners."

"Gar, don't ask your mother for any money! You'll get your allowance next week. We can manage until then—"

There was an excitement in Kitty's tone that brought Gar's glance to her glowing face.

"What's the big idea of not touching the mother?" he asked, a little ill-humoredly.

She pushed him gently into his chair and drew his tray up close to him. "Drink your coffee, Gar, while I talk. I've been thinking—I took a walk and sat in the park—Gar, we're just drifting; it's been fun, but it isn't what we wanted to do, what we talked of, at Panther mountain. Gar, we nearly quarreled last night. I'm sorry for my part—I mean that I hadn't pleased you, but Gar—aren't we both just a little tired of playing?"

No Need To Stay FAT

There are millions of people, slender and active, who can testify that excess fat and sluggish vigor need no longer be endured. You can see for yourself if you look about. Abnormal figures are nowhere near so common as they were.

Medical science has made a great discovery. It is the fact that excess fat is largely due to a scanty gland secretion. Food that should supply fuel and energy goes to piled-up fat. The remedy is not starvation, but correction of that fault.

Now doctors, the world over, feed this lacking factor. They combat this cause. And excess weight, by millions of pounds, has been wiped out in this way.

Marmola prescription tablets are based on this modern factor. They are prepared by a world-famous medical laboratory to present you this right treatment at small cost. People have used them for 24 years—millions of boxes of them. Multitudes of users have told others the amazing and delightful results. Thus Marmola holds the pinnacle place in this field of reduction helps.

Don't wait longer. Don't cling to methods hard or futile. Do the right thing now. All druggists supply Marmola at $1 a box. A book in each box gives the formula, and explains why the fat disappears. Start today on reduction by Marmola. You will always be glad.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

After Half an Hour of Racking Suspense, Lee Chow Seems Likely to Recover from the Strange Poison.

I COU'LD not hear Lillian breathe, and I know my own breath was suspended, for those few seconds after we had seen Lee Chow jerk his hand back, forcing out from his finger the slender needle from the mysterious package in Marion's lock box.

Harry and Katherine made a lightning-like change as she held out to him the surgeon's lancet, according to the directions that Lee Chow had given before he opened the box and ran his fingers over the knobs in the unopened envelope.

The Lancet Is Used

Harry grasped the lancet. Katherine took hold of the twisted tourniquet around the second finger of the right hand, and Harry, following the hastily muttered directions of Lee Chow, who was indicating with the forefinger of his left hand just where the needle had entered, cut deeply into the flesh at that point and again in two places just below the first.

Then he dropped the lancet and seized the tourniquet again, while Katherine manipulated the finger to make it bleed more freely and then dressed it. But she was covertly and anxiously watching Lee Chow's face while she worked. I realized the reason for the camp cot that I had seen set up in the corner of the room when, as she finished, Lee Chow slumped against Hugh Grantland, who had stood directly back of him.

With Dicky's aid, Hugh supported the almost unconscious figure of his friend to the cot and stretched him out upon it. But Lee Chow was not wholly unconscious. He spoke clearly.

"I can tell now which poison it is. Give me what I told you the blue bottle please."

Lee Chow Rests

It was Hugh who measured a potion from a blue bottle that, with several others, we now saw standing upon the writing desk. Lee Chow swallowed it with apparent difficulty and then closed his eyes as if exhausted. But his lips were moving.

"I have a good chance," he said. "It is not the worst poison I feared, but it is bad enough. Let me sleep now. When I wake I shall be either in this world or with my ancestors."

Katherine was at the side of the cot as he finished speaking and bent over him with a tense, watching face. The rest of us stood silent, motionless, stunned by the unexpected, tragic development in the search of the box.

My father crossed to us and spoke softly.

"You would better wait somewhere else," he said. "Even Katherine can do no good now. His fate is on the knees of the gods."

"How long?" Lillian asked. I could not have spoken if my life had depended upon my utterance.

"Before you came down," my father said, "Lee Chow anticipated every step of this procedure. He said if the poison was that for which the fluid in the blue bottle was an antidote, he would be dead or the poison of the needle would be beaten in less than half an hour. Of course he will be weak afterward, but safe. And he will sleep during all of this period, so there really is no reason why you should stay."

"And a dozen why we should go," Lillian said promptly, "the chief among them being the necessity for keeping the house quiet. Come, Madge, let's do police duty."

We slipped out of the room unheeded, for every face in it was turned to the sleeping man on the cot.

For more than the half hour named we "rode herd," in Lillian's expressive parlance, upon the rest of the household, seeing that the older boys and girls stayed upon the tennis courts, and amusing Roderick and Junior to the best of our ability. I tried to fight down my nervousness and to emulate Lillian's poker calm, but when finally Dicky came out of the little room looking for us, she was as quickly tense as I in her grasp of his arm.

"Is he ——" I began, and could not finish.

"No." Dicky was emphatic. "He's very much alive. Katherine doesn't want him to talk after what he's been through, but I guess he's hep to those Oriental poisons and knows just how far he can go with 'em. At any rate he wants you two to come back while he chants the saga of the other night."

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote, on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Gray Hair

Best Remedy is Made At Home

To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. It imparts color to stranked, faded or gray hair and makes it soft and glossy. Barbo will not color the scalp, as just a few gray hairs does ...

2 To Reduce the Severity of Colds: If a cold slips by these precautions or strikes without warning . . . don't neglect it. At bed-time massage your throat and chest with Vicks VapoRub. During the day use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours for added comfort and relief. This gives you full 24-hour treatment.

NEW SHREDDED BISCUIT MORE ECONOMICAL

Just One of the Improvements Developed for Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits

When the Kellogg Company were perfecting their new shredded biscuit, they decided that one of the improvements would be in the size of the biscuit. Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are a new, convenient size. Two are just right for a serving and fit the cereal bowl without crumbling. Also you get 15 to the package, instead of the usual dozen.

The new Kellogg biscuits have a most delicious taste and crispness. They are "pressure-cooked"—a special process that bakes in the rich flavor. And every biscuit is double toasted—browned on both top and bottom.

Of even greater interest is the fact that Kellogg's WHOLE WHEAT Biscuits are so rich in food value that every package is certified by the Medical Arts Laboratory of Philadelphia. "Pressure-cooking" retains all the food value of the whole wheat, as well as making the biscuit easier to digest.

You'll find these new shredded biscuits a very welcome improvement. Delightful served with hot or cold milk or cream—fruits or honey added—for breakfast, lunch, the children's supper.

Grocers say that sales are steadily increasing. Identify this improved cereal by the familiar red-and-green Kellogg's package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Huskie Stars Seek Berths on Olympic Team

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, Wash The University of Washington will not lack in quantity at the Olympic Games trials next spring.

Following an announcement by university officials that the Husky varsity rowing crew and track team will be given a chance to compete in the trials, a third decision was reached whereby the best boxers of the school will be sent to the Pacific Northwest association championships at Portland, Ore, in March

The Portland meet has been designated by the Olympic officials as the first step in elimination toward the selection of the United States boxing team and Norman Kunde, Washington "ring" coach, believes Washington stands a chance to place one and possibly two fighters on the Yankee squad

Kunde points to John Standard, former Pacific coast intercollegiate champion at 135 pounds; Dick O'Shaughnessy, present coast 115 pound titlist and Charles Drysdale, Washington featherweight champion, as being among the leading prospects to enter the Olympic tryouts.

It will be the first time Washington has entered boxers in Olympic trials

A Swatter Shows What's What

Rapidly rounding into shape, Hack Wilson, ex-Cub and now of the Brooklyn Dodgers, socks out a home run at the Dodgers' training camp at Clearwater, Fla. The giant outfielder says he has regained his batting eye and promises to show the Brooklyn fans "hitting what is hitting"

No Exceptions, Board Says, to New "Dead Ball" Ruling

BY FOSTER HAILEY

Associated Press Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, March 8 — When the football rules committee last month changed the rules to make the ball dead when any part of the carrier touches except his hands or feet and the ground they intended no exceptions be made, according to E K Hall, chairman of the committee.

Inquiries from both officials and coaches had aroused some confusion whether the committee intended the rule to apply to a runner falling in an open field with no one near

"What if a ball carrier should slip and fall with a sure touchdown in sight, and that play should decide the game" one football fan asked

Hall made it clear that the committee intended no exceptions to the rule.

There have been rules against "piling on" and "crawling" for several years, but reports to the rules committee indicate these have not been rigidly enforced

The old "dead ball" rule read "The ball is dead and shall be so declared by the referee

"(A) When a player having the ball goes out of bounds, trips down or is so held that his forward progress is stopped, when any portion of his person except his hands or feet touches the ground while in the grasp of an opponent."

The committee amended the rule to change to the phrase "while in the grasp of an opponent."

IS PUNCH GONE?

Well It Would Hardly Appear That Way in This Case.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, March 8 Two more victims were added to Jack Dempsey's knockout list when his barn storming tour passed here last night One of the opponents, Eddie Anderson, of Baltimore, suffered a fractured jaw.

Dempsey finished Johnny Chick of Detroit in two minutes and 17 seconds Anderson lasted two minutes and 14 seconds

The former champion was hitting in old-time form when one of his blows caught Anderson on the mouth. It knocked out several teeth and later a doctor discovered Anderson's jaw was fractured.

The first Sunday afternoon hockey match ever played in St. Louis by the Flyers drew a crowd of 9,000 persons.

WADE MAKES DEBUT ON PADDED MAT HERE BY TOSSING ARNOLD

Ray Carpenter Draws with Fred Moran in Semi-Final of Shovel Card.

Glen Wade, the bulky Mississippian, was more than a match for Sailor Arnold, the highly touted gob from Norfolk, in the main go of last night's mat offering in the Steam Shovel gym

After taking the first fall in 2 minutes with a flying body scissors Arnold never gave Wade any serious opposition. The southerner warmed up to his task and pinned Arnold in the second fall with a cradle hold in 12 minutes The deciding fall was short. With a deadly headlock, Wade forced his opponent's shoulders to the floor in a minute and a half.

Although the match seemed rather slow, the boys showed plenty of science that offered a change from the semi-final bout.

Ray Carpenter and Fred Moran drew in their semi-final bout. Moran won the first fall in 17 minutes slamming Carpenter after the latter had been clipped on the chin with a right jab A wicked kneed knee gave Carpenter the second fall in five and a half minutes. Neither was able to score in the deciding fall.

Carpenter was a little too slow for Moran and the latter was severely handicapped by an attack of blood poisoning that forced him to compete a match here several weeks ago

A reverse back slam gave Lorry Stroub of Columbus a victory over Jack Ashley of Toledo. The match lasted 16 minutes.

10 Years of Wet Weather Due, Says Expert Studying Changes

By International News Service

LA JOLLA, Calif.—Scientists at the Scripps Institution of Oceanography here were about ready today to abandon the old theory of what causes bad weather.

The traditional theory as explained by Dr. A. F. Gorton, the meteorologist, was that a warm summer means a dry winter and a cool summer is followed by a wet winter.

A new theory on which the institution staff is now working, is that the drop in temperature, rather than high temperature itself, is a cause of rainy weather.

Last summer the ocean waters off this coast were exceedingly warm and the warmth lasted until November. Yet the present winter brought excessive rain and snow all over the west.

"Last summer's abnormally high temperature caused the ocean warmth to last until November and the seasonal drop coincided with the start of the usual rainy season," Dr. Gorton said, showing the temperature curves on a chart covering 25 years. "We are starting an investigation to determine if a new theory, modifying the old one about the relationship of temperature and rainfall, will explain this coincidence.

"The old rule of temperature and rain seemed to hold true in the far western states and southeastern states, with a different rule governing the lower Mississippi valley."

Professor Gorton said one of the recognized weather cycles is a cycle of alternate wet and dry periods with 22 to 30 years between peaks.

"The world is just emerging from a 15-year long dry period," he said. "We may expect 10 years of wet weather."

While science still seeks a definite cause for weather changes, it appears, according to Gorton, that the ebb and flow of the polar ice field determines whether storms shall be big general ones or local showers in the west.

When the Polar front, or ice sheath on the top of the world extends far south, it sends down cold air currents that "energize" storms.

"We are trying to find in the ocean and air temperatures, a convenient means of determining in advance whether a season will be wet, cold, dry or warm," Professor Gorton said. "This work is being done for the sake of science and to help people in cities and on farms, gas and coal companies and all other human enterprises anticipate and prepare for the rainy day."

MYSTERIOUS CAVE IS FOUND IN SOUTH

Believed To Hold Treasure from Civil War Period.

By International News Service

BURNS, Tenn.—This vicinity is excited over the reported discovery of a mysterious cave filled with Civil war treasure, on the banks of Turnbull creek, eight miles south of here.

The cave located in the woods was found by Louis Thompson while setting traps. Thompson says he entered the cave and in the entrance chamber was attracted by a stone on which was carved a hand pointing to the interior. On the hand appeared what he supposed to be a diagram of a cave. Beneath the hand were chiseled the words "Beware the Red Hand." On another stone was cut a face, wearing a long beard.

Following the direction indicated by the hand, Thompson entered another chamber and to his left found a stone wall, evidently fashioned by human hands. He took away part of this wall and, examining the chamber behind the wall with his flashlight, saw a box about two or three feet in dimension. He said he was unable to reach the box. Near the box lay what Thompson said he believed was a large pile of German currency.

On the side of the cave Thompson found the date 1860 carved into the rock.

Thompson has refused to disclose the location of the cave and says he planned to make further investigations.

OILS LEAD IN STOCK UPTURN

Opens Sluggish, but Broadway in Later Trading.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 8—Oils provided the spark for a fresh advance in the stock market today. The list opened sluggish, with a few issues, during the earlier hour, showing strength in Standard Oil Corp. finally spread to other units of the list, and the rally gained after midday. Gains of 1 to 2 points or more were scored, carrying the general level up once more to around the year's best.

Such issues as standards of New Jersey and California, Texas Corp., Tidewater-Associated and General Asphalt rose a point or more, while several of the lower priced oils moved up fractionally. Chemicals and Tobacco "B", Liggett & Myers "B", Columbian Carbon, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Allied Chemical showing gains of around 2 points. American Telephone gained as much. Miscellaneous issues up a point or more included U. S. Steel, American Can, National Biscuit, New York Central and Southern Pacific. Exceptional gains appeared in Penick and Ford, International Silver and Auburn, up about 3 to 4.

The gains in the oils and tobaccos were in further response to the billion dollar tax bill as presented in congress, which omits specific additional levies on gasoline and tobacco. On the whole, financial quarters expressed satisfaction with the tax measure.

The annual report of the Phillips Petroleum company, showing a loss of $5,576,409, after depreciation, inventory writedowns, and all other charges, provided a fresh picture of the unsatisfactory conditions under which the industry has been operating.

The sharp uprush of the British pound sterling was so spectacular as to be regarded as somewhat unsettling, particularly in connection with a downturn in the London stock market.

COLD PUSHES GRAINS HIGHER

Advance in Sterling Exchange Rates Also Is Bullish Factor.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 8—Strengthened by a sharp advance in sterling exchange rates, wheat prices averaged higher early today. Persistent severe cold and complaints of insufficient snow protection for domestic winter wheat were also bullish factors. Opening unchanged to ½ higher, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ off and subsequently hardened.

With sterling showing an overnight jump of more than 12 points, and this circumstance taken here as evidence of improved financial conditions abroad, wheat traders displayed considerable tendency to keep aloof from the bear side. Buying support for wheat values was not aggressive though, and advances gave way to reactions which carried the market to below yesterday's finish. Anxiety regarding cold wave damage to domestic winter wheat was tempered by assurance that positive knowledge of injuries could only be disclosed by a period of growing weather.

Wheat bulls, however, took special notice of Kansas reports that owing to limited soil moisture the crop in the western part of the state was particularly liable to injury. An official summary said that if expected winter killing had not already taken place, the crop would at least be more seriously endangered during high winds of March and April. Another bullish circumstance was word that despite arbitrary milling regulations and continued heavy import duties, there had recently been large purchases of wheat for European continental countries. Corn and oats prices swayed with wheat.

JUDGE, PROFESSOR ADDRESS DEMOCRATS

C. L. Justice and Gordon Hayes of O. S. U., Speakers at Party Meet.

Judge Charles L. Justice of Marion, presiding judge of the Third district court of appeals, and a candidate for reelection to the appellate bench, was a speaker at a meeting of the Marion County Democratic club in the party headquarters here last night.

Gordon Hayes, professor of economics at Ohio State university, candidate for congressman-at-large, also spoke.

During a round table discussion following the talks, various questions pertaining to the election were answered. Clyde Ullom, president, was in charge of the business session. Miss Stella Smith, program chairman, was in charge of a social hour. Refreshments were served. One hundred persons were present.

Mr. Hayes, speaking on "Our Economic System," declared that legislation should keep pace with our rapidly changing conditions, and pointed to a need for a change in the entire economic system.

(NO COUPONS)

To Our Farmer Friends:

Since the opening of this station in July 1927, we have received a lot of business from the farmer.

We have tried to show our appreciation of this by maintaining a price on gasoline and oil which has saved all of our customers a lot of money.

Whether you bought your oil and gasoline from us or not you benefited by the cut others made to meet our prices.

Now we are offering our farmer friends a special price on tractor oil to help him meet his problems.

This is not a cheap oil made from western crudes but a genuine 100% Pure Pennsylvania tractor oil, equal to or better than anything on the market regardless of price.

We are giving you the benefit of the carload price plus 5 cents a gallon to cover handling charges as this oil costs us 27 cents a gallon in carload lots delivered in Marion.

This oil is made especially for heavy duty tractor service and is not recommended for motor cars.

Whether you buy a gallon or a carload the price is the same. Bring your own containers.

Regular gas 14 cents—68-70 High Test gasoline (the easiest starting gasoline made) 16 cents. 100% Pure Pennsylvania lubricating oil (the same grade others sell for 30 to 35 cents) 12 cents per quart.

A coupon worth 1 cent which can be exchanged for valuable merchandise given with each gallon of gasoline or quart of lubricating oil.

Why not give your business to the station which made low price gasoline available to the motorists of Marion County?
